

Stacey Stuart

Stacey has held a career in the workers' compensation insurance industry for 29 years. She started her career at Sedgwick CMS in 1994 adjusting claims for a large, self-insured account before joining AmFed in 2000 as a Sr. Claims Specialist. Stacey worked on both the self-insured claims and carrier claims before being promoted to Supervisor. She later earned the position of Claims Manager of all third-party administration and carrier claims for AmFed. Stacey provides guidance and support to all staff to ensure professional development objectives and key performance indicators for the department are met. She promotes positive public relations through attending and presenting at conferences, stewardship meetings, new client orientations for large accounts, and other external customer and industry related events.

Stacey has served on the Mississippi Workers' Compensation Educational Association's Conference Steering Committee since 2015 and has been a panel speaker at the Conference. She was awarded the Leading Change and Organization Development Certification by the University of Alabama in 2008. Stacey earned the Certified Self-Insured Workers' Compensation Professional designation. She attended Hinds Community College.

Outside of work, Stacey spends most of her time with her husband of 31 years, her children and two granddaughters.
